THE MAIN ARGUMENTS IN FAVOUR OF NEUFCHÂTELcare BY VILLEROY & BOCH

The well-known brand.

The facts speak for themselves: around 80% of the population is familiar with Villeroy & Boch as a well-known tableware brand that unites tradition, quality and innovation. People of all generations love its stylish crockery, essential to the well-laid table. Villeroy & Boch represents a celebration of gourmet culture and a good dose of joie de vivre – full of emotion, warmth and a sense of true value.

► This is exactly what we want to create for older people in their living environment, even if, or particularly when, they no longer live in their own homes. That's what your home offers. And that's what NEUFCHÂTELcare represents: a familiar place to call home.

The sophisticated design.

The design supports functionality: with a beautiful shape and unique details, coupled with perfect ergonomic design for intuitive, balanced and comfortable use. All functional characteristics have been professionally considered and devotedly designed. The white premium porcelain gleams warmly – and fully meets the requirements of kitchen and service.

Michael Schlenke, expert in universal design:

"NEUFCHÂTELcare is the result of an active co-design partnership. The formal design of each individual piece enables simple, intuitive use. Eating, especially liquid foods such as soups and stews, from the comfort plate or the bowl is also completely straightforward."

► This means that eating continues to be an enjoyable part of life, and mealtimes in your home can become part of a relaxed dining culture – dining simple, easy and cultivated. NEUFCHÂTELcare's motto is design and function for mealtimes with pleasure.

TESTED:
‘MANY POSITIVE EFFECTS!’

In cooperation with

Martha Niemöller
Senior physician
Geriatric medicine
Evangelisches Klinikum
Niederrhein gGmbH

Dr Zimansky, the department of geriatric medicine has contributed to the development of NEUFCHÂTEL care – what aim does this project have for you?

Our goal is to prevent malnutrition, or to balance it out. In positive terms, this means we are researching solutions that enable proper nutrition in old age. This effectively helps the healing process and is a factor in the process of healthy ageing. Independence and sharing meals together help elderly people to maintain their quality of life and enjoyment of food.

What role does crockery play in this?

Crockery actually plays a very decisive role. This was clearly shown by the study we conducted together with Villeroy & Boch.

Ms Niemöller, you conducted a practical test in your institution. How did you proceed with this?

Our project was initially broken down into the following stages: checking the design recommendations from Villeroy & Boch for high-quality, age-appropriate crockery and formulating our feedback. This was followed by a more in-depth discussion of details. Each individual step was carried out consistently with optimisation in mind and the compensation of processes and functional deficits. Once Villeroy & Boch had completed the design of the crockery, we tested it out in the geriatric medicine department with our elderly patients. In several observations, we were able to get an idea of how the items fared in terms of eating and drinking. There were many positive effects and some of these were surprising.

How would you describe these effects in more detail?

If I may, I would highlight just a few points that the NEUFCHÂTELcare crockery has addressed particularly effectively. The large, open handle makes it easy for the patient to use the mug themselves. The goblet shape not only makes it easier for them to drink, but also reduces the risk of liquids going down the wrong way. Both the flat plates and the convenient soup plates make it easier for patients to feed themselves, even if they have severe motor disabilities. We noted that tables were cleaner after mealtimes than with standard crockery – and this is very important when it comes to being able to enjoy mealtimes with dignity. The crockery aids this by keeping its balance, helping to prevent embarrassing situations. With the elegant designs in warm, contrasting colours that appeal to the tastes of older people and underline the function of the crockery, this range also provides additional support, including for the visually impaired. We also noted something that we hadn't accounted for at the outset: the significance of the name Villeroy & Boch. People are familiar with the brand from their own lives. They associate it with a quality that accentuates the quality of the food and expresses their own value as a person. During shared mealtimes, we were able to observe that patients consumed more food and drink. Well-known patterns underline the character of a family-style crockery design, which can also enable the participation in joint mealtimes with their family in future.

So, did the Villeroy & Boch crockery fulfil the expectations you had of it?

Yes, absolutely. Villeroy & Boch has shown that it is possible to create designs that are beneficial from a medical and therapeutic point of view.
