Guidelines and Recipes

For Using Eclipse Plain Mix

General guidelines and tips for best results

Eclipse Plain Mix will appear separated after thawing and requires re-emulsification with a hand blender or similar equipment (a whisk is not powerful enough to re-blend the mixture).

Eclipse Plain Mix is unflavored and performs at its best when strongly flavored “to taste” on the operator end. The more fun and creative, the better!

In general, you can use the same amounts of other flavorings you would use in dairy mixes as the starting point in Eclipse Plain Mix. You may find that those flavor profiles show better if you slightly increase them in Eclipse Plain Mix.

We find that it is best to use extracts and powdered flavors (cocoa, freeze dried ingredients, etc.) when flavoring Eclipse Plain Mix. Flavorings with high moisture contents may affect the final texture of the ice cream. For example, in coffee ice cream, we typically recommend using freeze dried coffee or coffee flavor/extract in place of brewed coffee to minimize moisture.

Use the recipes below as inspiration to get the best results from Eclipse Plain Mix.

Cocoa/Coffee/Tea Recipes

Eclipse Plain Mix works great as a canvas for chocolate, coffee and tea flavors. Dried versions of these flavorings (instant coffee, matcha, etc.) work best to preserve the texture of the Mix, but concentrated liquid flavors used up to 5 - 7% can also work well.

Use this as a starting point. Chocolate syrups vary by brand, and may require adjusting the % of addition.*

Alternatively, make your own chocolate syrup using a cocoa powder of your choice (we use an alkalized cocoa powder with ~22% fat). Adjust sugar or cocoa percentages to create your desired flavor.

Blend all ingredients to combine, then heat to a gentle simmer. Cool the syrup before adding the desired amount to the ice cream mix.
