

Warranty is limited to repair or replacement of the defective item and does not cover consequential liability or damages. Warranty does not cover improper usage or tampering. If warranty is not allowed by the manufacturer, the customer is responsible for the cost of the replacement item.